April 22 – 24, 2010

Pediatric Ethics 2010: Advancing the Interests of Children

Description

Pediatric Ethics 2010: Advancing the Interests of Children is a unique, multidisciplinary program developed to promote thoughtful discourse and principled debate regarding a broad range of longstanding and newly emerging issues in the field of pediatric medical ethics.

Participants will experience opportunities to interact closely with leaders in the fields of bioethics and pediatric health care as they address matters germane to pediatric medical ethics. These topics include consultation models, end-of-life decision-making and palliative care, dilemmas in neonatal and pediatric intensive care, ethical challenges in the ambulatory care setting, and ethical issues relating to pediatric research and health care reform.

Target Audience

This activity is designed for physicians, nurses, researchers, educators, chaplains, social workers, ethicists, lawyers, and anyone with an interest in issues relevant to pediatric ethics.

Objectives

- Identify common ethical challenges distinctive to pediatric practice and discuss relevant consult models, structure, and process;
- Identify ethical challenges associated with cutting-edge neonatal and pediatric intensive care and elaborate on applicable principles, duties, and virtues;
- Describe ethical considerations surrounding care of children as the nation works toward major health care reforms and as communities establish pandemic preparedness plans;
- Discuss key ethical insights with respect to provision of palliative care for children;
- Describe ethical dilemmas encountered by ambulatory care providers and discuss approaches and resources to address these dilemmas.
