Dear Exhibitor:

I am writing to invite you to exhibit at the ASH Review conference the Cleveland Clinic Educational Foundation is planning on January 19, 2024. The exhibit fee for this program is $2,500. The program will be held at the InterContinental Hotel, Cleveland, Ohio. Exhibit space will be set up outside the room where the event will take place from 8:00 am – 3:30 pm.

The Cleveland Clinic is working with University Hospitals to present this conference. We have been holding this highly successful event in conjunction with UH and CWRU for more than a decade. For physicians who did not attend the ASH meeting, this program will provide an in-depth discussion of the latest scientific and clinical findings in cancer care. Hematologists, medical oncologists, radiation oncologists, oncology fellows, and oncology nurses will receive a comprehensive review of the major highlights of the ASH meeting. We are expecting approximately 200 participants.

Learning objectives for this program are:

1. Describe the implications for new diagnostic and therapeutic approaches to hematologic disease.
2. Discuss the impact of research and new treatments on patient management.
3. Review evidence-based approaches to management of common hematologic disorders.

This activity has been approved for AMA PRA Category 1 Credit™ and ANCC credit.
