PROGRAM OVERVIEW
This case based course will address the rapid advances in the treatment of valvular heart disease and will engage participants in discussions, debates, and practical decision making surrounding real world cases with a multi-disciplinary team of experts. The course will focus on clinical decision making while combining the most relevant medical, surgical and interventional options for patient care.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES
1) Incorporate current and emerging clinical evidence in the treatment and evaluation of patients with valvular heart disease
2) Assess the advantages and limitations of medical, surgical, and interventional therapies based on real world cases and accepted guidelines
