

4th Annual IBD Master Class

Medical & Surgical Team Approach to Complex IBD

Monday & Tuesday
April 3 & 4, 2023

Online / Live Webinar

DESCRIPTION/OVERVIEW

This virtual event focuses on advanced topics in “IBD-ology” from a Cleveland Clinic perspective. Format includes case-based multidisciplinary extended discussions interspersed with didactics. Audience member participation in the discussions is highly encouraged.

This event will be held on April 3 & 4, 2023, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. (ET), and we anticipate a national and international audience. We have organized a world-class expert faculty team and will review pitfalls and promising new treatments for the management of complex IBD patients.

Audience participation in the extended discussions is strongly encouraged. This course offers a chance to ask “everything you ever wanted to know about IBD, but didn’t know who to ask” so you can “get it right the first time” – giving your patients the best opportunity for a successful outcome.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Colorectal Surgeons, Gastroenterologists, Mid-level Providers, Nurses, Residents, Medical Students, and healthcare providers caring for IBD patients

OBJECTIVES

- Describe the management of common and uncommon IBD presentations
- Describe the indications and contraindications for managing various different presentations of Crohn’s disease and ulcerative colitis with medical and surgical therapies
- Identify treatment options for patients with complicated IBD medical and surgical patients
- Review and provide update on current aspects of MDT approach to IBD patient care
